Topic: Winter feeding of honey bees

Venue: Pulaski County Extension Office, Somerset

Mike's Ramblings: A note from LCBA Vice President Mike Wooton

Greetings for a new year of beekeeping. I hope everyone has had a good fall and winter season. I have been doing some upkeep on hives and making sure my bees have an ample supply of food. Lost a couple hives last year but it seems, up to now, that my bees are still with me. We have had a wet but not so cold winter and I hope all is well with your bees.

I am going to try to produce some comb honey this year. I have had requests for jars of honey with the comb. Many remember eating honey where they could chew on the comb, so I am going to see how that works.

Now is the time for planning any changes to your apiary. I am going to do some splits and some re-queening. Always be aware of mites and small hive beetles and do the proper treatments. These seem to be the greatest problems we have in maintaining healthy hives.
